THE SWORD INTERVAL

BY BEN FLEUTER

HHHHH...

ONE WEEK AGO

Operation Marathon.
SICK·FLIPZ
ROLLER RINK
ARCADE

According to our Seer, that's where we'll find the Reliquary.
Atlas
Baltimore, MD
Escort Job
Enemy = Unknown?
Provid own vehicle
October 12th

Sorta.
Rue said it herself, not all her visions are straightforward.

Sometimes they just show you the right place and time or whatever.

Like with the Hierophant and his dumb museum heist.

Is "heist" the word for when you blow up a museum? Hm.
Gotta hate this fate stuff. Makes it hard to plan our own heist.

Is just being there enough? Or is all... this just wasted effort?
Well, what ya got?
Operation Marathon's an escort mission that Atlas is sourcing through the American Hunter's Guild. One truck. Unknown number of artifacts.
One hundred and six miles from Baltimore to a dropsite off the coast of Delaware.

From there, a different unit will move it overseas. If that happens, we lose it.

Why hire hunters rather than move it themselves?
Couldn't tell you.

Say, I dunno just as an example, that a couple hunters want to steal something.
They're just advertizing the time and place to hit 'em.

M-hm... Something smells off. It's too sloppy for Atlas.
I'll ask around once I'm in there.

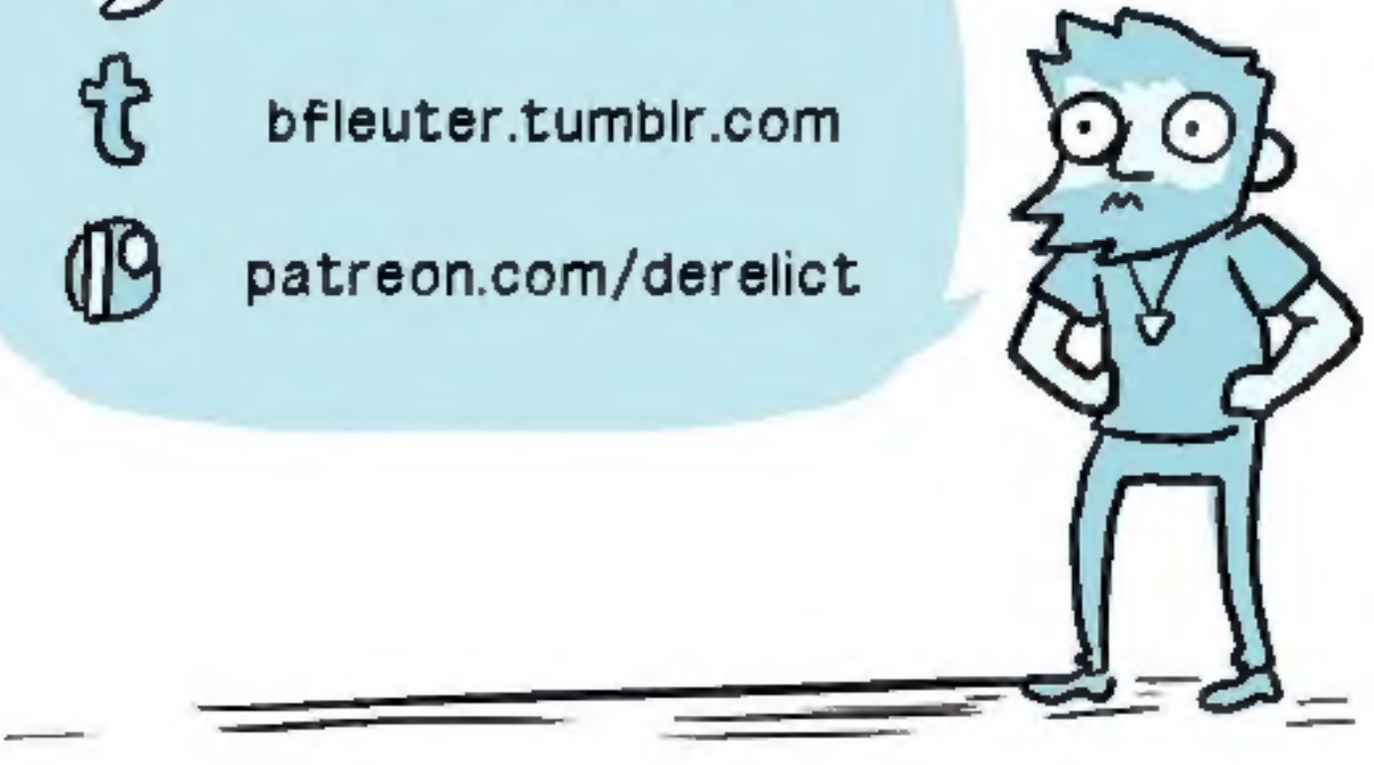
The Sword Interval recently turned 3 years old!

Thanks for being along for the ride so far. This comic is a blast to make and I'm lucky to get to do it. I don't often mention other places on the web to find me, and this seems like as good a time as any.

twitter.com/bfleuter

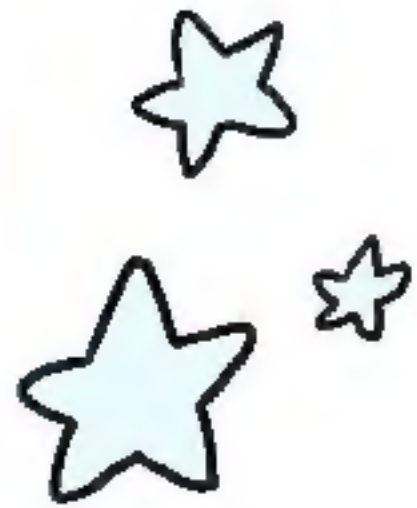
bfleuter.tumblr.com

patreon.com/derelict



I also have an online store.
Until the end of July 2018,
books there are 30% off.

bfcomics.bigcartel.com



Alright, that's my plugging. Ya'll have a good one, and seeya next week.